The Dukes of A. and B. This commercial was traveling in the north of Scotland, with two great noblewho were intent on shooting. We shall not greatly err if we call them the Duke of A. and the Duke of B. The Duke of A. is an intensely "conversational" man, totally devoid of self-consciousness, and ready to receive or pour out information to any extent. The Duke of B. is very good-hearted, but by no means equally given to converse. When the train stopped at a refreshment station, the Duke of A. got out to partake, according to his fashion, of ginger beer, and the other two remained in the carriage. Now, what might be the name of your quick relief, and is so effective in its cure, as in friend?" asked the bagman of the Duke, what is termed Female Weakness. It has never Din't you know him?" was the reply. "Why, I thought everybody knew him.

Every night they rise at 12 and meet in the chapel for matins; two hours they remain there, and at 2 they go to bed for three hours more. At 5 their day be gins a day spent in the solitude of a cell, and devoted to prayer and study. On Sundays and on feast days they dine together, but a reading from the lives of the saints prevents all conversation: for the tongue, said St. Bruno, was only to be used for prayer and praise. On such great fasts as Good Friday they will usate no food, but on an ordinary fast day perhaps a little bread and water will be passed into the iron grille through which sli their meals are supplied to them. Fires are only allowed for two months in the year.

Remarkable presence of mind was recently shown by a miner near Pottsville, Penn. He was employed in a shaft on Sharp Mountain. He had lighted a fuse and was climbing to the surface by means of pegs in the side of the shaft. When within a few feet of the top one of the pegs gave way and the unfortunate mou-fell to the bottom, thirty feet below. One of his thighs was broken and the splintered bones were pushed through two pairs of pantaloons. Notwith-tand-ing his terrible injuries, he had sufficient presence of mind to crawl to the lighted use which had burned within a few inches of the charge and to smoother it If he had not done this he would have been blown to pieces when the explosion took place. He then crawled back to one of the earth buckets, got into it without assistance, and was hoisted to the surface.

As a proof of the economy practiced by the new Government of Egypt, the Austrian journal Bombe gives the following illustration: Criminals of a certain grade are entitled to one hundred lashes with the bamboo cane; buten superior court has reduced the number to fifty, on the ground that the Government is obliged to spend too much for bamboo canes, when the lashes are too lavishly administered.
